FARM DISPLAY IS PRAISED

QUALITY FINE AT I. O. O. F. PICNIC AT BURLINGTON.

MANY FINE EXHIBITS

Homer Carmichael Supervises "Young Fair Exhibits"—Premiums Given By the Merchants.

For the first time in its history, the I. O. O. F. picnic at Burlington Junction this year had in connection agricultural and home economics exhibits, which surpassed in quality and quantity the expectations of even the most optimistic.

Opinions of many persons who have had opportunity to attend the Missouri and Iowa state fairs this year have been that the exhibits at the Burlington Junction Odd Fellows picnic compared favorable, and even in some regards on a higher level as to quality that they saw at the large state fairs.

D. O. Belt and J. Ross Fleetwood, county extension agent, when judging the farm products day before yesterday, remarked that they were pleased and greatly surprised at the extent of the exhibits and especially commented on the home economics displays that were brought for exhibition and competition. Great deal of the credit for the success of these exhibits is due to the efforts of Homer Carmichael of Burlington Junction, who arranged for all the details from securing premiums to the awarding of the prizes.

In speaking of the work of the judges this morning Mr. Carmichael said that the I. O. O. F. lodge of Burlington Junction appreciated their efforts and that the placing seemed to meet with general approval. Miss Ora Mae Condon and Miss Mabel Cook judged the home economics and needle work displays.

Even though this was the first occasion that such exhibits have been brought to the I. O. O. F picnic there, the 52 by 73 foot tent was unable to house properly the displays but under the supervision of Mr. Carmichael it was a well arranged exhibition of the handiwork of Nodaway County women and the products of Nodaway County soil in and around Burlington Junction.

The premiums, both cash and merchandise, were offered by the merchants of that city and the combined value of the premiums exceeded $500. The number of exhibitors could not be ascertained unless a careful check of the entries could be made. However, as an indication of the number of displays there were prizes offered under 189 different headings. In general home canning, garden display, baking, needle work and general farm displays constituted the appealing, attractive and excellent quality of exhibits.

On the west end of the tent tacked up against high boards, tall stalks of corn formed the decorations. On the tallest stalk of corn brought in and prize was awarded to Doug Hellar, that measured 16 feet and 3 inches. Tables loaded with garden truck, canned goods and goodies from the kitchens were offset by a background of fruits and flowers, while huge melons, pumpkins, gords and potatoes were strewn about on the ground.

The outstanding exhibit of the general farm products was raised by S. H. Williams, who lives east of Burlington Junction. Mr. Williams had 115 different varieties that were all raised on one farm. His exhibit was closely followed by Frank Greeley, who won a number of prizes under the general farm display heading.

The versatility of Nodaway County soil was further indicated by the garden display of D. B. Warren, who had forty-five varieties, winning first prize and also second on melons. Mr. Warren included in his exhibit everything from peppers to gords. And on home canning Mrs. W. E. Nicholas, Jr., was awarded first, followed by Mrs. C. C. Bears. The awards on wheat went to H. C. Keltner, grown on the T. A. Corken farm, which was regarded as the best grade of this year's wheat.

Nodaway is noted for its immense corn crops, but the corn exhibited at Burlington this week also back up the opinion that the best quality of corn is grown here. The outstanding exhibit of corn was that owned by John Greeley, who had eleven varieties on

ADDED IMPROVEMENT AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

SOME ARE DEDICATED

Ten Are Tan And Will Be Placed In Main Floor—Expect to Finish Work Tomorrow.

The art glass windows for the First Methodist Church have arrived and are being erected in place today. Dr. C. C. James said this morning that he expected the work to be completed by tomorrow night.

There are twenty-three of the art glass windows and all have tan and cream as dominate colors so as to match with the walls and woodwork of the church. The windows are equipped with vents, which will eliminate the wood sash partitions. The windows are constructed of leaded glass re-inforced with steel braces.

Ten of the windows are tan with colored ornamentations. These will be placed in the main floor of the auditorium.

Two circular windows are to be placed in the tower and one in the organ. In the balcony three large figured windows are being placed.

In the south window the picture of "The Angel and the Three Marys in the Tomb" will be placed. This window is dedicated to Dr. and Mrs. James. This window is to be of a darker color than the other windows in order to soften the south light.

To Christian and Margaret Curfman.

To the Wesleyan Class.

To the Epworth Class.

Five drop lights have been installed in the auditorium and seven lights have been placed under the balcony These lights are the "daylight blue" type and do not cause a glare in the eyes of the speaker.

Only 1 Note Given At Closing Out Sale

Others Paid at the Harry Clayton Sale Yesterday—One of the Early Sales of the Season.

A good crowd and good prices were secured at the closing out sale of Harry Clayton held yesterday at his farm about six and a half miles south of Maryville on the paved highway. This was one of the early sales of the season. It was said there were 170 automobiles at the sale.

Another interesting fact of the sale was that only one bankable note was taken in at the sale, all of the others paying in cash or by check.

Mercury Registers 95 At 1 o'Clock

High Mark Yesterday is 97—100 in St. Louis at Noon Today—No Relief Promised.

With the mercury in J. R. Brink's thermometer registering ninety-five degrees at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Maryville and this section of Missouri is in the grip of a heat wave now prevalent throughout the Middle West.

The lowest point last night was around the sixty-seven degree mark, Mr. Brink said, and today found the mercury slowly ascending again.

The high mark yesterday was ninety-seven, Mr. Brink said. No relief is promised for tomorrow.

St. Louis, Sept. 4.—With the temperature at 100 degrees at noon today, the highest point in more than three years, little relief was in sight.

Already eight persons have died as a result of the heat wave, which commenced about a week ago. Several prostrations were reported during the day.

DIPLOMA MILL INQUIRY IS ON

GRAND JURY IS EXPECTED TO BE CALLED.

'STUDENTS' WOULD AID

Health Board Head and Prosecutor Confer And Legal Action May Follow Immediately.

Kansas City, Sept. 4.—A Jackson County grand jury investigation of the use of money to obtain medical license is expected to follow a conference today between Dr. James Stewart, secretary of the state board of health, and Forrest W. Hanna, county prosecutor.

Dr. Stewart, who came to Kansas City at the request of Mr. Hanna, was closeted with the prosecutor for several hours this morning. James R. Page, attorney for the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery, also attended the conference. It was learned that a grand jury probably would be called the latter part of next week or the week following.

Mr. Hanna, it is understood, hopes to obtain indictments in connection with the board of health scandal through evidence of conspiracy by the offer and acceptance of bribes.

Ten Kansas City medical students and licensed physicians, it is understood, are ready to go before the grand jury to testify they paid Dr. Roy B. Horton of Kansas City and Purdy, Mo., sums ranging from $250 to $750 for Dr. Horton's "influence" with Dr. Cortez Enloe, formerly secretary of the board and now a member.

Reginald Vanderbilt, Millionaire, Dead

It Is Understood By Friends That Heart Failure Was Cause of Death Of Financier.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 4.—Death closed down suddenly on Sandy Point Farm in Portsmouth today and Reginald C. ("Reggie") Vanderbilt, third and youngest son of Cornelius Vanderbilt and one of the country's leading horsemen, left his wealth behind.

With the multi-millionaire of 44 years was his 20-year-old wife, formerly Gloria Morgan, movie star, and daughter of the American consul-general at Brussels. They were married two years ago.

Although no announcement came from the Vanderbilt farm, friends learned that the cause of death was heart failure.

Realty Man of K. C. Shoots Himself

Kansas City, Sept. 4.—W. W. Meriwether, prominent realtor and a member of one of the early families of Kansas City, was found dead about 8 o'clock this morning at the door of his garage.

A bullet fired from a pistol which lay at his side had penetrated his head and Dr. H. E. Moss, coroner, said he had committed suicide.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson and daughter, Pauline, and Miss Leona Brigle of Trenton were the guests Tuesday and Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chappell.

HIGH HONORS FOR OFFICERS

ALL BUT ONE TO BE BURIED IN ARLINGTON.

CRITICIZES NAVY HEAD

Widow Of Commander Blames Wilbur But He Declares Lansdowne Set Time For Flight.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 4.—All officers killed in the wreck of the dirigible Shenandoah, except Lieut. Arthur Houghton, will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery near Washington, it was announced at the Shenandoah's base here this afternoon. Lieutenant Houghton will be buried in Brookline, Mass.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 4.—Lieutenant-Commander Lansdowne, commander of the ill-fated naval dirigible Shenandoah, and who was killed while "on duty" when his airship crashed to earth in Ohio yesterday, will be buried among the nation's heroes in Arlington National Cemetery. The widow of the Shenandoah's commander today telegraphed officials of the navy department notifying them of Lansdowne's request to be laid at rest in Arlington.

Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 4.—While the gallant dead of the Shenandoah lie at Belle Valley, five miles east of here, guarded by members of the American Legion, preparations were being made here today for a military board of inquiry to officially determine the cause of their death. Commander Jacob Klein of Cincinnati was to preside.

Meanwhile, arrangements were being completed at Belle Valley for the journey of death to the last resting places.

C. A. Dye, undertaker, assisted by six others, worked throughout the night preparing the fourteen bodies for shipment. A truck load of caskets arrived from Columbus during the night. The following official report on the casualties, sent out by the Red Cross, was as follows:

"Total number of dead, fourteen; injured, two; bruised, twenty; uninjured, seven. Personally viewed and touched the bodies of the fourteen men. Several mangled about head face and chest almost beyond recognition."

Army officials today expressed great indignation over the tactics of souvenir-hunters, who swarmed to the scene of the disaster yesterday. Scarcely had the wreckage settled to earth, it seemed, than the ruthless assault of souvenir-hunters began. Huge strips of outside silk fabric were torn away by men who claimed they sought the material for raincoats. Long sections of the dirigible's girders were hauled away by the motorists. Others carried off field glasses and anything they could move.

Officers pointed out that the depredations of the souvenir hunters would probably hamper the investigation of the disaster. Even the official records, including the log book, were reported missing today.

Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 4.—With the arrival of Commander Jacob Klein, head of the naval board of inquiry, appointed to determine the cause of the wreck of the dirigible Shenandoah yesterday, it was announced today that the official inquiry would begin at once.

Klein was accompanied by other members of the board of secret service agents and other government representatives.

One of the first concerns of the government, it was learned, would be the recovery of the log book of the dirigible, believed to have been taken by some one of the hundreds of souvenir hunters who swarmed over the scene of the great disaster yesterday.

A truck load of loot had already been recovered today but the valuable book is still missing.

Secret service agents were working upon rumors which spread rapid-

THE HABIT OF THRIFT.

And one of the good habits long put off is thrift.

Often this habit does come in second childhood. With appetites and passions burned out of the decaying mind and body, old men may find themselves freed from temptations and wrongly consider their condition due to ripened virtue.

But thrift, like any other "virtue" forced upon one by nature, is apt to find its environment unhealthy and to curdle into penurious meanness. If thrift is to be wholesome and sweet and fruitful it must be embraced while the mind and body are healthy and vigorous.

Thrift is a composite quality. It embraces within itself nearly all of the great virtues. It implies industry, prudence, forethought, self denial. It certainly has no relation to niggardliness or meanness.

Some men would let their grandmothers starve to death for the sake of a few dollars. That cannot be called thrifty.

And virtue carried to excess becomes a vice and is no longer virtue. Thrift that does not take into partnership honesty and charity sours into covetousness and avarice.

True thrift is the opposite of thriftlessness, prodigality, improvidence and waste.

Thrift means better homes and better food, more comfort and enjoyment, less waste and less anxiety.

Out of it grow quickened energies, firmer courage, more stalwart thought and hope, more orderly citizenship, education and a good chance in life for the children, and the independence and self resepect that life aimless, hopeless drudges up to true manhood.

THE IDLE WORD

The idle word that stings is as old as human speech. Spoken thoughtlessly or spoken in a moment of irritation, it says more than the speaker meant. At least it says more than he would have said if he had taken second thought. Too often in a hasty moment one who really would not for worlds cause lasting hurt does just that because he reaches for the first remark that will register.

These idle words go deep, deep into the heart and memory of the one to whom they are addressed. If he tends to brood, he reflects: "But he could not have said that, even in a hasty moment, if it had not been the real thought of his heart. That is the way he thinks of me." Sometimes such a thoughtless saying embitters a part of a whole life, alters a friendship that had been held very dear, continues to exact its cost after the speaker has forgotten it.

There is no way of reaching this harm by laws and courts. There is no way of resolving that one will never say the thing that causes needless hurt, except by resolving to build up a habit in one's life of saying only kindly things until quiet reflection has shown the need of something else.

This is not a text for weaklings, a counsel of meekness to the point of being trodden upon. It was not a weak man who prayed, "Set a watch before the door of my lips," nor a fool who wrote, "She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

It won't be so difficult to manufacture fire-proof wall board once the makers learn what five-cent cigars are made of.

Education is the basis of sanitation. Teach the houseflies that life in the open is more healthful—and there you are!

What is the proper position of the feet when walking? is a question asked. It is entirely proper to have at least one foot on the ground.

It is observed by a speaker that the age seldom sees the man with a patch on his trousers. Maybe it is because we no longer have the variety of colors that never matched.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

MISSOURI'S OPPORTUNITY.

(From St. Louis Times.)

More than one state a few years back looked with envious eyes on California's prosperity. Florida looked, received an inspiration, and acted. California had sold its sunshine, and Florida had the same commodity to sell to the country.

California advertised and thousands of new home seekers trekked across the continent to the land of oranges, lemons and movie plants.

What state will be next to focus the interest of the country on its assets? What state will be next to advertise, to boost and to ballyhoo with similiar success? A number of other states already have organized booster campaigns, and those states, to greater or less degree, will realize on their investment.

There is no good reason why, with the wealth and population in this country, other Southern states than Florida should not attract visitors and lure thousands within their borders. There is no good reason why Missouri, though it lacks Florida's chief appeal, the sea and the gulf, should not advertise its manifold resources and its assets. We have made a beginning, but have not as yet put behind the movement the energy and the finances necessary to success.

Missouri may not have ocean bathing, nor a summer climate in winter, but few will find fault with our climate and certainly no one will claim that Missouri's countless streams do not furnish as good fresh water bathing as is to be found in any state. Our state highway program, moreover, calls for a system of hard surfaced roads such as will compare with those of any other state. Every section of the state is linked by good roads with every other section. Our streams are filled with game fish. Sections of the Ozarks, for scenic beauty and primeval grandeur, are excelled nowhere in the Mississippi Valley.

The recent suggestion made by Senator George H. Williams at Maryville that Missouri, with natural resources sufficient to support a population twice as large as it now has, call the attention of the rest of the country to those resources is a timely one. A nation wide advertising campaign might well be undertaken by the Chambers of Commerce, the various civic and commercial organizations and others with the help of the state government. Prosperity and growth come only to those states which seek it.

WHAT PRICE FIRES

The record shows that nearly 15,000 persons were burned to death last year, and more than 16,000 were injured by fire. Of these persons, 80 per cent were dependents—mothers, children, and inmates of state institutions.

With a total of $548,810,639, the property loss was the highest ever recorded for the nation—an average of $1,503,590 a day, or $1,044 for each minute of the year. That property loss of more than half a billion is more than three times the amount of the Chicago fire loss, and more than any other country has ever endured in one year. Ten years before, the property loss was $221,437,000—a figure indicating that the United States is now burning more than $2 where it once burned only one. What will the loss be for 1934?

Fire departments and water supplies are maintained at a cost of another half-billion dollars a year, so that a billion dollars is paid every year to keep fires down and out. If that billion dollars of tribute money were piled up on one side of a road to be paid one dollar at a time on the other side of the road, and if one man began the job, carying a dollar across the road every minute day and night, the payment would require twenty-seven generations of men, each living to the age of 70, which means that if the work had been begun twenty-two years after the birth of Christ, it would have been completed just last year. But fire collects a billion dollars from the American people in one year.

That towering pile of dollars would pay for nearly three Panama canals, would pay the salaries of all the teachers and school superintendents in the United States for a year and a half, or would keep the postal service going for nearly two years. Economy and patriotism would be well served could the American people declare "Millions for fire prevention, but not one cent for tribute."—Nation's Businesss Magazine.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Everybody knew President Coolidge was thrifty, but even for him it was "going some" to evolve a scheme by which the government is to get $160,000,000 worth of public buildings without spending—in fact, in the long run saving money. Explained, however, it's simple.

To begin with, the government has about half as much room as it needs to accommodate, suitably, its numerous personnel in Washington.

Of the other half about 50 per cent are quartered in a lot of warbuilt shacks that never were meant to be anything but temporary and now are on the verge of falling flat down if they're not torn down. For the remaining workers rented office room is provided.

The president wants to get the war shacks' occupants into regular permanent buildings before their present roofs collapse on them. He wants also to cut off the $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 item which the government now pays annually for rentals.

What, he asked, would be the cost of putting up the necessary structures to house the entire outfit in the style the government ought to maintain its hirelings in? The answer, estimated, was $160,000,000.

The presidential soul revolted at the thought of taking any such sum out of the government's pocket. Wasn't there some way of getting the buildings without doing it? The president began figuring. We won't appropriate $160,000,000, he said to himself; we'll issue long term 4 per cent bonds for it.

The interest will be $6,400,000 annually. Thus our housing problem will be solved and we'll be saving each year the difference between $6,400,000 interest and $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 rentals, or $13,600,000 to $18,000,000.

At the end of a dozen years at most this saving will amount to enough to pay off our $160,000,000 bond issue. Then we'll have our buildings cost free, and can begin to economize.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 4.—Barney and Jim, roan gelings of Percheron Belgian blood today hold the world's record in horse pulling contests.

This pair Tuesday stepped out at the Iowa State Fair and pulled a load heavier than any ever drawn before. They pulled the equivalent of 44,500 pounds of granite block. The horses are owned by the Blue Line Transfer Company and were driven by W. A. Miles.

LEAGUE WILL COMBAT CRIME

STATE ORGANIZATION TO AID YOUNG.

CRIME ON INCREASE

Number of Enthusiastis Letters of Commendation Are Received Endorsing Plan Of Action.

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 4.—Thousands of Missouri girls who only "want a good time;" and boys who could be saved for splendid citizenship, are meeting dangers and temptations from which they can be shielded, and many of them who could be kept from the brink go over. This fact is shown in a statement on the increase of crime in Missouri with delinquency as one of the contributing causes, issued by the Missouri Welfare League through A. A. Speer, banker and prominent in public affairs of the city, who is chairman of the State Committee of the organization.

In response to the league's special effort launched recently to extend its organization to every town and city in the state, Speer said that letters of enthusiastic commendation were being received at the league's headquarters, 1300 Central National Bank Bldg., St. Louis, indicating a thorough state-wide interest in the movement.

The statement, which is based on a survey of conditions throughout Missouri and information gathered by the league, says that its purpose is to save thousands of boys and girls from delinquency, and those from careers in crime who make first missteps, and to protect society by preventive methods.

"To make God-fearing, law-abiding citizens out of the boy and girl material of Missouri is certainly a worthy undertaking, and to render a state-wide service toward the eradicating of crime by striking at the roots is the need of the hour," the statement asserts.

"Through research work and the study of local conditions, by campaigns of education and the securing of proper legislation that will put in motion remedial processes, many of the crime-breeding conditions that now beset the youth of the state can be overcome or eradicated."

On the question of the increase of crime, especially among young first offenders, the statement says:

"The juvenile court procedure in most parts of the state is not sufficiently protective. Children are often treated as criminals, due to an inadequate number of well-trained and efficient probation officers and the need of more latitude in the juvenile court law allowing for special treatment of such offenders. Thousands of children brought into juvenile courts at a stage of their development where proper adjustments would make them useful citizens are not receiving such treatment and are becoming criminals."

"We find that small boys of eight, nint and ten years of age are sent by the juvenile courts to the Missouri Reformatory at Boonville which also receives young men up to thirty years of age sentenced to the penitentiary by circuit courts and given commutation of sentence to the Boonville institution. While an attempt at segregation is made, overcrowding and lack of facilities render anything like complete separation of types impossible."

"Hundreds of young men under twenty-five years are herded in one huge penitentiary with older men, some of them are expert and hardened criminals, degenerate, or feebleminded. The determination and demoralization which takes place are unspeakable. Our city and county jails our workhouses, and our penitentiary, through lack of proper facilities and remedial legislation, are literally breeding places of crime."

"Missouri has no adult probation law. The parole laws are, however, very liberal. The need for placing carefully selected types of offenders in the community under strict supervision is great. The present system destroys some men by unnecessary imprisonment in destructive prisons and endangers society by sending other offenders into the community without proper supervision. On account of the lack of parole officers, prisoners paroled from workhouses and the penitentiary are sent out without adequate provision for their readjustment in society. A return to criminality, sometimes assisted by harrying by the police, is often the result."

Among the specific remedial measures to be sought by the league it states, are the following:

Amendments to the juvenile court law, including the appointment of an adequate number of well trained probation officers; theestablishment and development of adult probation; improvements in parole; the early establishment of an intermediate reformatory; new jail buildings in a number of counties or the creation of district jails; many changes in the management of penal institutions, including segregation, adequate medical inspection and care, the establishment of schools, and a new state prison board law; police women in many of the towns and cities of the state to patrol motion picture shows, to assist and counsel young people before they are in serious trouble, to deal with various types of women accused of crime, and to assist the community in making places of public amusement, streets, parks and stations safe.

John R. Marriner was appointed administrator of the estate of Elizabeth DeNeen, who died March 30, 1925.

IF HER FATHER SHOULD DIE, SHE'D HAVE TO GO TO WORK.

Neither father nor daughter nor wife knows that. But he has not made his Will.

Like many well-to-do business men, this girl's father has put off making his will and he has not troubled to check his investments with the state and federal inheritance tax laws. So the division of his estate, in accordance with the statute of descent and the depreciation of it through taxes and fees—because of unplanned security holdings—will mean a job for his daughter or wife, when he is gone.

The pity is that it is unnecessary. Attention now would save the situation. Is your house in order? Our trust officers are at your service to help you investigate.

AUTUMN DAYS.

The melancholly days have come,
The sadest of the year,
When chilly days and frosty nights,
Will very soon be here.

When we go to pay the coal bill,
And we have'nt got a cent,
And we wonder where the dickens,
All our summer wages went.

When we shiver in the mornings,
In our worn out B V D's,
That come much less than half way,
From our hips down to our knees.

When we put on all the clothes we have,
To keep out wind and snows,
And the women (bless the women),
Will don their thinest clothes.

How they wear their furs in summer,
And near nothing in the fall,
And how they keep from freezing,
I can't figure out at all.

I, redily can understand,
How it is they stand the heat,
But how they keep from freezing stiff,
Is, what has got me beat.

AN ANCIENT LOVE LETTER

Comment On The Uniform International Suncay School Lesson For September 6, 1925. Read Philippians. Wm. Southern, Jr.

We all like to get letters. And when we receive a letter from one who loves us or from one whom we love it makes the day brighter and our work lighter. I am writing this letter to all of those who may be interested, as one lover to another, and it is about another letter, an ancient love letter.

Perhaps most of us have never thought of the fact that much of what we call the New Testament is a collection of letters. Letters written from time to time by men living in the first century to men and women whom they knew and loved and to whom they wished to send messages of affection and encouragement. Probably hundreds of these letters were extant when the New Testament was compiled, for in those days a letter was not the common every day thing it is now, and was not thrown in the waste basket. A letter could not be sent four thousand miles for a two cent stamp and almost certainly reach its destination on time. A letter was a rare thing and letters were preserved. So it happened that certain letters written by great men were considered to contain so much of value to Christianity that they were collected and made a part of our Bible.

One of these old letters is our study today. It is in reality a love letter and was written by Paul to his friends who composed the church at Philippi. Paul seemed to have loved this church better than any of the churches he founded. The incidents of the founding of this church have been the subject of our study for two lessons. A woman was the first member and a jailor was next.

This letter of Paul to the Philippians was written some ten years after he founded the church. He probably had visited Philippi after he left at the request of the rulers. The Christians of Philippi never forgot Paul. They loved him and when they heard that he was a prisoner in Rome they made up a package of love tokens and sent them to him by one of their own members whose name was Epaphroditus. I do not know what was in this package. I am sure there were letters from members of the congregation and probably there was a bit of fruit cake sent by some Martha in the congregation and a pair of socks sent by some Dorcas. The messages and the tokens touched Paul very much and he wrote his acknowledgment, a love letter to his friends and sent it back by Epaphroditus.

Thus it happens that we have as a part of our New Testament that short book we call the Philippians. You can read it in half an hour.

Paul was a good letter writer. He sent greetings and love messages to his friends, he acknowledged their kindness and thanked them for it, he told them of his condition in Rome, he promised not only to send Epaphroditus back but to send Timothy to help them, he urged them to be good Christians and to live rightly and told them how.

The church at Philippi seems not to have been a rich church, it was a working church. There is just one hint in the letter about disagreements among the members. Epaphroditus had probably talked long into the night with Paul the day he got to Rome and told him of all the gossip from home. There were two good women who had fallen out with one another. They probably would not speak when they met in prayer meeting or attended the Ladies' Aid all-day session. Paul thought this serious enough to mention them by name in his letter and exhort them to be friends as they were both friends of his. The name of one of these women was Euodia and the other Syntyche. How would you like to have your name and that of your dearest enemy in the church coupled in a church history which would become a text book for other generations? This letter of Paul to his beloved at Phillippi is a letter to every Christian. That is how it comes to be in our New Testament and the text for our study wherever the International Lessons are used. A few Sundays ago I heard the lesson for that day from this series used in a Sunday school mission chapel in Central America.

In this letter Paul answers the man who said to me some time ago, "I am not good enough to be a Christian." Paul, nearing the end of his strenuous life, a man who had given to Christianity his entire time and attention who had no other aim in life but to preach to others, tells his old congregation that he is by no means perfect, that he never expects to be. He rather sadly refers to parts of his life and says that perfection is not in being but in striving.

I am not good enough to be a Christian, I know that perfectly well. I never expect to be good enough but if striving toward the goal makes perfection, and Paul said so, we may all become Christians worthy of the name. Not perfect, forget about that part. No man becomes perfect and if he should he would be too good for this old earth.

Paul knew that his people wanted something concrete and he placed this verse in his letter telling them just how to live:

"Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Is it not rather remarkable that Paul did not say, "Do as I tell you or go to Hell." So many preachers adopt this method and get nowhere. Paul never tried to scare people into the church, he tried to love them into the church.

What he did say was "Think on these things." He knew that as a man thinketh in his soul, so is he. The man who loves truth, beauty, honesty, purity and is proud that he stands of good report among his fellows, never goes very far wrong. The man who thinks about lovely things, sees lovely things. The man who thinks about and prizes his own self respect has the respect of others. The man who thinks and sees only the pure, the lovely and the true, himself reflects that thinking and anything else makes him cringe and shudder.

What are you thinking about all the time? Tell me that and I will tell you what kind of a man or woman you are.

This was Paul's wise love letter to the Christians at Philippi.

A GROUCH NOT WANTED.

There is nothing so harmful to success as being a grouch. Stomach, liver and intestinal troubles make one grouchy. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy will help overcome these and usually gives complete results.

Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At all druggists.—Adv.

A Bumper Corn Crop in Sight

(The Hog Crop is far below normal.)

You will soon be feeding new corn, and your hogs will need mineral.

Our Regular Mineral will supply the need.

It is suiting others; and will suit you.

Read what Dr. C. S. Meyers, Auburn, Nebr., says:

Auburn, Nebr., June 16, 1925.

Stock Yards Daily Journal, St. Joseph, Mo.

Dear Sirs:—Since reading the first adv. of the Bradley Farms Necro-Mineral Co., Elmo, Mo., which appeared in your columns about two months ago, I have had occasion to thoroughly try out the merits of these mixtures, in several herds near Auburn, Nebr., which were badly infected with Necrotic Enteritis. I can truthfully say, that out of a possible 2,000 hogs, which we have treated with Necro-Mineral, we have not lost to exceed 10 hogs. I am also finding their Regular Mineral, as a preventative of Necro, to be all they claim; and believe that Mr. Bradley has discovered a formula which will be of great benefit to Veterinarians and Stockmen, in holding this disease in check. I am writing this solely as a matter of information to others; and as a courtesy to the manufacturers of these products. I might add that I have had 22 years of practice; and we had previously lost hogs by the thousands in this locality.

(Signed) C. S. MEYERS, D. V. S.

If we can get the above results, after others have failed, we should be entitled to the business of Nodaway County; and we will assure you that your swine troubles will be given our closest attention.

Many Famous Film Stars Of Yesterday Now Struggle On In Poverty And Obscurity

By RUSSELL J. BIRDWELL
NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Sept. 4—Where are the famous movie stars of yesterday?

No fame is more fleeting than that based on the celluloid film.

Only ten or fifteen years ago there were Pickfords, Fairbanks, Gishes, Talmadges and Swansons. But now their names hint of flown ghosts.

A few are happily married, some have sought seclusion at the corners of the earth, others still struggle on in the film world, forever grasping at that which has slipped from them forever—youth and fame. Several have dropped from riches to poverty.

But now the film glory that once was hers has faded with the rest of her forgotten kindred — Marguerite Clark, Gene Gauntier, Florence Lawrence, Mary Charleson, Ella Hall, Marie Walcamp, Mabel Trunnelle, Mary Fuller, Helen Holmes, Lottie Briscoe and countless others.

Miss Turner is back at the scene of her early triumphs but not as a star. She goes from studio to studio seeking employment, but only now and then does she get work even as an "extra" at $7.50 a day.

She is still not 35. In 1913 she went to Europe because of poor health and started her own film company. Due to the war it was a failure. All kinds of misfortune followed, until Marion Davies raised a fund to relieve her destitute condition.

"For eight years I have fought for a chance to come back," she said with tears in her eyes. "But nobody wants me. I guess I'm through.

She, too, tried to come back, but found conditions in the industry so changed she could not succeed. For awhile she tried reporting on the Kansas City Post, but domestic troubles and the longing for the old film life caused her to seek contentment in Europe.

Miss Lawrence's career as a star was abruptly terminated eight years ago when her face was badly burned in escaping from a burning building.

All the skill of specialists could not restore her lost beauty and the loss of her cinema fame was inevitable. However, she refuses to give up the fight and is working as an extra in pictures here.

Marguerite Clark, once as noted in the film world as Mary Pickford, and Mary Charleston, star of the old Vitagraph company, now are happily married. The former is the wife of Harry Williams of New Orleans, and the latter married Henry B. Walthall, the actor.

"I have found more happiness in my home than I ever could have found in the vain glory of seeking personal fame," says Mrs. Walthall.

And Mrs. Williams wires:

Years ago Ella Hall was the "child wonder of the movie lots." She deserted the screen to marry Emory Johnson, a director. She became the mother of three children and after fame came to her husband, he deserted her, according to her divorce complaint at Los Angeles.

Nine years ago, Mary Fuller, once a star, suddenly disappeared. It was as though some gulf of obscurity had drowned her. Only recently was the wistful Mary found living in seclusion with her mother in a Washington, D. C., suburb.

"I ran away from it all because I thought I had gone as far as I could," she says.

There are countless others who have fallen from lofty pinnacles into the abyss of obscurity.

Where are the rest of these stars of yesterday who thrilled the hearts of men, women and children—Dorothy Bernard, Alice Hollister, Marion Leonard, May Hotaling, Edith Storey, Marie Walcamp, Billie Rhodes, Francelia Billington, Enid Markey, Claire Anderson, Dolores Casinellie, May Buckley, Maude Fealy, Juanita Dalmorez, Pearl Sindelar, Ormi Hawley, Irene Warfield, Helen Holmes, Cleo Madison, Winifred Westover?

And every day the list grows longer.

Several Farm Sales At Burlington Junction

(Burlington Junction Post).

Good crops and fair prices are starting land to selling again. The past four years have been mighty slow ones for real estate dealers, but there has been a tendency for land to change hands during the present year. The fine crops now growing and prospects that farm products will again sell at fair prices this fall are expected to cause many real estate deals this fall and winter.

Marcus Carter to David Closz, 31 acres at $909 for the tract.

R. N. Barber to W. H. West, 80 acres at $150 per acre.

A. F. Stitt to David Closz, 3 acres at $200 per acre.

Delia Arnold to Charles Dewyre 39 acres at $300 per acre.

Thomas Farrell to R. N. Berber 164 acres at $200 per acre.

R. N. Barber to Thomas Farrell 444 acres at $175 per acre.

Sells His Apple Crop for $2,000

George R. Murray returned yesterday after spending about four weeks at his fruit farm near Oregon, Mo. Mr. Murray sold his 1925 crop of winter apples from the twenty-acre bearing orchard for $2,000 to Pile and Murray of Oregon, the buyers to do all the picking. The firm at Oregon is in the fruit growing and shipping business. The orchard had been well sprayed and the fruit was generally first class.

Refused $1,000 for 90 Head of Spring Pigs

(Barnard Bulletin)

A. D. Reardon, prominent farmer and stockraiser living northeast of Barnard, refused recently $1,000 spot cash for ninety head of spring pigs, weighing from eighty to ninety pounds. Mr. Reardon thinks that the hog market will be enough stronger to justify his keeping his pigs and feeding them out, although he says the offer would have netted him over $4.00 a bushel for the corn or its equivalent he has fed these pigs.

Mr. Reardon is a very successful hog raiser, having raised these ninety head from twelve sows. He also has ninety head of fall pigs from fourteen sows that are doing well. He has fed so far, about 1,000 pounds of mill feed, two wagon loads of corn and some oats to his pigs, besides allowing them to run on good alfalfa pasture.

Chicago Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Grains finished sharply lower on the Chicago Board of Trade today. The market was still in control of corn influences.

A wave of profit taking weakened wheat. Local professionals who were credited with the bulk of buying for the past three days were heavy sellers. Aside from the weakened corn undertone, there were bearish factors in wheat that aided in the downturn.

Selling in corn was based on a forecast of a letup in the heat wave now prevalent over the principal growing regions.

Oats were quiet and followed the general market action.

Provisions met short buying and went into a higher finish.

Three Street Cars In Bad In K. C.

Kansas City, Sept. 4.—Three perfectly good street cars are in bad in Kansas City today for violating the parking ordinances. They were tagged right on their motor handles late yesterday for being "parked" on a spur track in the downtown section. The spur track is in a fire line. With thirty-six hours to appear in court, neither the cars, their drivers nor Uncle Sam, in the person of the federal receiver had appeared up to 1 o'clock to pay $1.50 fine. It is understood the receivers will appeal.

Skidmore Chautauqua Was a Success

(Skidmore News.)

The 1925 Skidmore chautauqua is over and just as soon as a meeting of the chautauqua board of directors can be held, all bills will be paid, and it is the opinion of the directors that enough money was taken in this season to pay all expenses.

A guarantor paper was passed among the men of the community Monday and Tuesday and more than eighty names were signed to the list, expressing their desire for a chautauqua for 1926. There were about seventy names on the list for the 1925 chautauqua.

At a meeting of the signers Tuesday evening Dr Pierpoint and John McMahon were elected to fill the vacancies made by W. G. Reynolds and G. L. Owen. Immediately following the evening program a meeting of the chautauqua board was called and a chautauqua for 1926 was contracted for, with the White & Brown Chautauqua System, the same company that furnished the program this year.

Elmo Pastor Returns From His Vacation

PROSPECT HILL

(By EDGAR O. WELLS, Minister).

Once more your pastor and his wife are at home again after an outing of eight days, in which he was in labors often, without any special persecution, and having preached the gospel to congregations which were composed mostly of those to to whom he ministered in other days, namely at Bolckow, where he began his ministry in Missouri, on December 1st, 1889; and at South Park St. Joseph, where during a ministry of nearly ten years, his work was owned of God and man, and last Sunday night he spoke to nearly 150 people, and both young and old listened eagerly to the message.

The morning theme for next Sunday will be, "The Only Answer to the Wail of a Lost World." A fifteen minute song service will precede the evening sermon, when the theme of the hour will be, "Where Am I On the Way?" and we are asking the Young Married People's Class, Basyl Livengood teacher to take charge of the singing.

Please note the following special announcements: The sacrement of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the close of the morning sermon, and at 2:30 p. m. we will gather at the church, and any person who desires baptism by pouring or sprinkling, should be present, after which we will go to College Springs where any who desire baptism by immersion, will have an opportunity. All these should be present at the morning hour to answer the required questions. The W. F. M. S. will meet with Mrs. Vern Riggle on Thursday p. m., at which the annual Mitebox Opening will take place. Help these women. The President, Mrs. A. R. Alexander requests a full attendance.

Dan Cupid Makes a Record in Audrain

Mexico, Mo., Sept. 3.—Dan Cupid is acting up in Audrain County, and in an "off season."

Records at the marriage license bureau here show that 27 licenses to wed were issued during the month. This is a record number of licenses for one month—it never having been equaled before in the history of the county.

Six licenses last week end took the number over the former record of 1923 established in 1909 and equaled again in 1924.

WILL SET AIR PROGRAM BACK

CONGRESS MAY CALL HALT AS RESULT OF SHENANDOAH'S LOSS.

PUBLIC IS OPPOSED ?

Public Opinion Will Have Influence In Determining Whether This Disaster Shall Be Heeded or Ignored.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The immediate future of the aviation program of the American government was rendered uncertain by the Shenandoah disaster; which yesterday shocked Washington.

On the heels of the disappearance in mid-Pacific of the naval seaplane PN-9 No. 1, enthusiasts contending for an ambitious aviation program were confronted with the loss of the government's only military dirigible, torn to pieces in a gale over Ohio fields.

Despite a statement by Secretary Wilbur of the navy department that no change in the navy's policy with respect to rigid airships is contemplated, there is grave doubt that congress will authorize immediate resumption of experiments. At the same time, congress will be under extraordinary pressure for retrenchment, pursuant to an administration policy which already hinted at the laying away of the Shenandoah and the leasing of the Los Angeles in the interest of economy.

Now Fear Public Opinion.

Aviation authorities had feared the effect of possible catastrophe on the development of lighter-than-air craft, Experimentation survived the wrecking of the ZR-2, bought in England for the United States, which buckled over the Humber River, August 24, 1921, and the crash of the Roma, bought in Italy, when the ship caught fire near Hampton Roads February 21, 1922. But apprehensions as to how much further public opinion would sanction experiments so costly in lives and in money was indicated last November when Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, appeared before the house appropriations committee. Explaining adoption of the costly helium gas instead of hydrogen for inflating the dirigibles, Rear Admiral said:

"We feel that if we had another disaster, congress and the public would not stand for any further carrying out of the project which we believe is."

Check To Air Program.

Little doubt is held here that the advance of the general aviation program, and the policy advocated by men like Col. Williams Mitchell, who want to elevate the air service to an equality with the army and navy in an independent department, has been decidedly checked, although perhaps only temporarily.

In three different kinds of combat with the elements, new experiments in air navigation have encountered difficulty. The MacMillan expedition was halted by the early advance of the Polar winter. The PN-9 No. 1, attempting a flight to Hawaii, is missing, and western winds crushed the "Daughter of the Stars" over Ohio this morning.

It is not to be supposed that the navy would permanently abandoned the development of any line of activity because of a single accident, tragic as it is. The navy department regards the shattering of the Shenandoah as one of the accidents which must be anticipated. In the view of the naval officers, the results of tests of the Shenandoah with the U. S. S. Texas and other ships of the fleet will be more likely to determine the policy as to utilizing that type of airship.

To Talk It Over In Congress.

That the entire subject will be discussed fully in the forthcoming session of congress may be expected.

The secretary of navy would not affirm or deny reports that the dirigible station at Lakehurst, N. J., would be closed. The Los Angeles now is the only dirigible the government has. Whether the government will give any further thought to leasing its one remaining airship for commercial use was not disclosed. In connection with the possible leasing of the Los Angeles, there is the question of what effect the crash of the Shenandoah may have on commercial projects for airship lines.

WRAY NAMED STATE OFFICER

VICE-PRESIDENT FARM BUREAU ORGANIZATION.

CARROLL MAN HEAD

R. W. Brown Chosen President at Annual Convention Held In Fulton —Association Reports.

Ernest Wray, president of the Nodaway County Farm Bureau, who lives five miles northeast of Maryville, was yesterday elected vice-president of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation. He was one of the five delegates from this county to the eleventh annual convention of the state federation that is in session at Fulton this week.

R. W. Brown of Carroll County will head the state federation this next year. District delegates were chosen as follows:

First, Robert L. Mumford, Buchanan County; second, Judson Brown, Clifton Hill; third, A. Lee Ely, Monroe County; fourth, H. E. Slusher, Lafayette County; fifth, J. O. Trampe, St. Louis County; at large, Mrs. W. O. Record, John County; Mrs. V. E. Flemming, to an old-fashioned barbecue at the Marion County.

The delegates were yesterday treated the Producers' commission Associa- Missouri School for the Deaf.

In a report to the convention by tion at Kansas City, figures were shown that it had handled more than 5,000 cars of livestock in 1924, and ranked ninth among the sixty-seven firms operating on that market. The association handled approximately 100 cars more of livestock in Kansas City in July this year than in the same period in 1924.

FARM DISPLAY IS PRAISED

display, all grown this year on one farm. The championship on an exhibit of ten ears was won by A. D. Murphy with Reid's Yellow Dent, and the White corn of ten ears was raised by Tobe Spangler. The prize-winning ninety-day corn, white cap, was shown by Milford Miller.

Coming around to the melons a huge watermelon was marked 52¾, and Mr Carmichael said that the scales balanced at this point when this watermelon of Charles DeWyre was put on to be weighed. Mr. Dewyre also was awarded a prize on his muskmelons. But when it comes to large pumpkins the prize goes to C. H. Miller who said that one of his pumpkins was actually grown on his farm. It weighed eighty pounds. Mrs. Chris Bear displayed a pumpkin weighing sixty-eight pounds.

Due to the hot weather and inadequate means for proper display the fruit was somewhat wilted after being on display three days, but there was all kinds of fruit there that was mighty tempting. A plate of peaches of the Elberta variety were raised on the trees at the Mrs. Ann Huffman place and each peach weighedthree-quarters of a pound. Frank Greeley was awarded first on his display of cereals, including corn, wheat, oats, rye, barley and other small grains.

The home economics display was regarded as splendid by the judges, and although the exhibits were taken down last night Mr. Carmichael said that Mrs. C. R. Howell was given first place on the general baking display and also prizes on her pies. Mrs. C. E. Gipe made the best cakes according to the opinion of the judges and Mrs. Frank Miller baked the best bread.

Considering the size of the other exhibits, flowers were displayed profusely. Mrs. A. Monk was awarded first on flower exhibits and Mrs. W. E. Nicholas, Jr., placed second with her flowers, while Miss Ruby Neff was third.

The girls of the 4H clubs around Burlington Junction had some fine displays of needle work. Fay Adkins was awarded first on her work, Helen A. Corken, second, and Phylis Corken, third.

In the fancy work department the outstanding display was made in the needle work line by Mrs. Everett Miller of Burlington Junction. Others who were prominent in needle work they had made and put on exhibit at the Odd Fellows picnic were Mrs. Edwin Lewis, Miss Grace Woods, Miss Louise Larabee, Mrs. C. R. Howell. The latter had a large exhibit of quilting. Among the quilts was one that drew unusual interest. It belonged to Mrs. C. F. Mitchell, was a pieced quilt, designed in flowers and was 125 years old. An embroidered crepe shawl owned by Mrs. D. B. Warren is said to be 100 years old.

The four sacks of flour offered by the Townsend Wholesale House of Maryville for the largest display of farm products were awarded to S. H. Williams. W. E. Nicholas took second honors in this exhibit. The great American stable garden food, cooked nearly every meal, the Irish potato, must not be forgotten in mentioning a few of the winners. First and second place on potato exhibits went to Elmer Johnson, who took first on Irish coblers and second on Early Ohios.

There were many other exhibits and many other prize winners at the Burlington Junction Odd Fellows farm products and home economics display, but it is impossible to mention everything at one hasty glance.

Dearborn Home Has Its Second Tragedy

Kansas City, Sept. 4.—The second tragedy within a week visited the Thompson home in Dearborn today. Sunday, the family home burned to the ground. Today, M. P. Thompson, 23 years old, the sole support of his widowed mother, Mrs. Algie Thompson, was electrocuted in the yards of the Kansas City, Clay County and St. Joseph Railroad in North Kansas City. He disconnected the wiring of a control box on a trolley car, and then he accidently touched both the wirings of the control box, completing the circuit.

Widow Critizes Flight Order.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 4.—Mrs. commanding officer of the wrecked Shenandoah, last night declared.

"I will never be able to get over the fact that the department ordered the flight to be made at this season of the year. It is almost impossible to cross the Ohio Valley without encountering severe storms and Commander Lansdowne felt that the bureau's order to make the flight was a little bit too severe at this time."

She accepted the shock stoically, however, with the comment that "when a girl marries an aviator she is making a gamble. I've gambled and I've lost."

Lansdowne Set Time—Wilbur.

Washington, Sept. 4.—When advised that Mrs. Lansdowne, widow of the commander of the Shenandoah, had charged that her husband was compelled to make the flight in spite of his protest that there was danger of just such a disaster and that politics prevailed over his judgment, Secretary Wilbur said:

"That is not correct. Commander Lansdowne was allowed to choose his time. His judgment was that it would be safe to make the flight at this time. I would not have permitted the flight against the judgment or protest of Commander Lansdowne."

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 4.—Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne, widow of the commander of the Shenandoah, said at her home here that her husband had long felt a premonition that the flight over the middle West would end disastrously and had used every honorable means to avoid making it.

Mrs. Lansdowne, an attractive young woman who has been left with a daughter, Peggy, 3 years old, and a step-son, McKinnon, 10, said she had shared her husband's fears that this trip would never be completed. She said they had agreed the trip had been forced on Lansdowne by the secretary of the navy "for political reasons."

"Never, before he learned he might have to make this flight, was my husband nervous about flying," Mrs. Lansdowne said. "But he had been trying for a year to avoid this flight. Just before he left he told me, 'we are going to strike thunderstorms in Ohio, but I think we can get away from them.' I know now he did not think he could but was probably trying to comfort me.

Knew Ohio Storms.

"He was born in Greenville, O., and reared there. He knew the Ohio thunderstorms and what they could do, and he felt that the flight would not be a success. He had been nervous ever since he was ordered last June to make it. He used all the influence he could command to avoid it, but because the secretary of the navy wanted to play politics and send the Shenandoah over the middle West he insisted that the flight be made.

"Six days ago he asked Secretary Wilbur to postpone the trip until October 15, when the weather would be more favorable. The secretary refused and said this was the time because it was the right time for publicity, which would be gained by the ship's flight.

"He always felt that if he should strike a storm the ship would be lost unless he could manage to get around it.
